Even with health minister Luiz Henrique Mandetta reinforcing the need for isolation, in several parts of the country, protesters called for an end to the containment measures. In the United States, President Donald Trump extended social isolation until April 30, as did Argentina, which extended the measures until April 12.

The search for an effective medicine has been the focus of Brazilian scientists since January. At the World Health Organization, a clinical study with direct tests on patients is organized with at least 10 countries. A study conducted at the University of Turin in Italy points out that vitamin D can be a strong ally in the fight against coronavirus.

MARKET

The Ibovespa closed on Friday (27), down 5.51% and followed international markets. Despite the drop, the Brazilian stock market index rose 9.48% for the week. Today (30), Asian stock markets closed lower. The Nikkei index was down 1.57%; Shanghai was down 0.9% and Hong Kong 1.32%. Here in Brazil, the Ibovespa should react on the Government stimulus package that will benefits families who will be left salary payment during the crisis. In the world, oil should accentuate market volatility.

TOURISM

Alexandre de Moraes, Minister of the Supreme Federal Court authorized the government's to fail to comply with the fiscal responsibility law and the budget guidelines law. With the authorization, the tourism sector expects the government to issue provisional measures for the flexibilization of labor relations. The MPs foresee the suspension of employment contracts of employees during the crisis. The sector expects that, still on Monday (30), one of those measures will be edited.

HIRING ON THE RISE

In contrast to the crisis caused by the new coronavirus, companies that operate in the segment of essential services, such as supermarkets, hospitals and pharmacies keep at an intense pace of hiring. In retail, giants such as Big, Carrefour and Grupo Pão de Açúcar are expected to open 11,000 vacancies. Hospitals, on the other hand, must hire at least 3,000 people to meet the high demand that the pandemic has caused in these sector.
